Dear Hiring Manager,

I am a Sophomore Computer Engineering student at the University of California: Santa Barbara, and am applying to your posted position of Software Engineer that was referred to me through indeed.

I first found myself drawn to engineering upon participating in the Envision Engineering Program hosted at UC Berkeley, and decided to persue Computer Science at UCSB. During my time at UCSB, I have found a deep passion for Computer Science, in conjunction with creation and innovation. Through my coursework and involvement in extracurriculars, namely the Engineering Student Council, the UCSB Hyperloop team, and Coders SB.

As a child I always loved fighter planes, space technology, and national defense, so it was only natural to aspire to work at a large defense contractor like Lockheed Martin. To me, working at Lockheed Martin would not just be another bullet point on my resume, but a meaningful experience, and a personal lifelong goal.

I believe that my leadership and technical skills would sponsor my success and growth in this position. I have attached my resume with contact information and hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

Daniel Gamliel
